Volume 19 Issue 5 Published Monthly

May/June 2014

Lots of pictures this month, starting with the London Legal Walk which gathered outside our Lincoln's Inn shop. See the pictures on pp 2-3.

Steven Ross and Brian Hill had a great time attending the Canadian Association of Law Libraries annual conference in Winnipeg. See the pictures on pp 4-5. Wildy's and ICLR co-sponsored the opening reception at the Manitoba Museum.

We are now all looking forward to the British and Irish Association of Law Libraries meeting in Harrogate. We hope to see many of our customers there.

James Wilson, who is the author of our soon to be published Court and Bowled book on cricket and the law, has been interviewed on New Zealand radio regarding the Chris Cairns case.

At the beginning of July, John Pethick and Matthew Regnard will be in Trinidad and then attending the CARALL conference in St. Lucia. They look forward to seeing all our Caribbean friends and customers there.

TEACHING LEGAL HISTORY: Comparative Perspectives

Robert M. Jarvis (editor)

JCL Studies in Comparative Law No. 9

Price: £65.00
ISBN: 9780854901456
Extent: 310 pp
Binding: Hardback

Sixty-four leading legal historians ruminate on their own approaches to teaching legal history in nearly a third of the American law schools: what they teach, why they teach as they do, how they structure their courses, and what they expect their students and themselves to take away from the study of legal history. The diversity of approaches to the teaching of legal history as demonstrated in this collection is impressive and fascinating, and at the same time quixotic, unsystematic, not integrated into the law curriculum, and not comprehensive or thorough.

The contributions are full of inspiration, creative imagination and resourcefulness, self-criticism, insight, and a shared conviction of the importance of a knowledge of legal history for the future of the law teacher and the legal practitioner. They address: legal history in the law school curriculum; legal history and the common law tradition; legal history and the United States Constitution; challenges of the legal history course; finding one's voice as a legal history lecturer; teaching aids; locating and using legal history sources; local sources of legal history; legal history and the public, business community, and government; legal history and civil rights, the African-American experience, and women; transnational legal history; English legal history, Hispanic legal history; legal history and the American legal profession, judges, and the development of legal skills.

PASOLINI'S ITALIAN PREMONITIONS:
Same-Sex Unions and the Law in Comparative Perspectives

Maria Frederica Moscati

JCL Studies in Comparative Law No. 8

Price: £65.00
ISBN: 9780854901357
Extent: 332 pp
Binding: Hardback

This book considers legal, procedural, and social aspects of the development of the phenomena of same-sex unions and their disputes across a broad range of jurisdictions over the past three decades. It offers a comparative analysis within the discourses of family law, anchoring that analysis in an empirical account of relevant developments, and the controversies surrounding them, in Italy. The study focuses on Italy as a revealing case-study of the issues, because it is a jurisdiction where the arguments for and against legal recognition of same-sex unions have been put forward within a particularly close relationship between legal developments, culture, social values (including religion) and political interests. From that empirical focus, the book proceeds to a comparative study, analysing effects and consequences of same-sex unions and disputes in other selected jurisdictions, and showing the manner in which law and society, including religion, have influenced each other in this area.

The study argues that legal recognition of same-sex unions is not a manifestation of tolerance but rather is a development within society and its law depending on several cultural factors. It emphasises that same-sex unions have long been part of family law in many cultures around the world. Despite their importance, the sometimes long-established accounts of same-sex unions and disputes have been an almost completely neglected area of study in comparative family law. The reason for such neglect of practices and discourses lies mainly in the methodology used in comparative family law.

In order to reach these conclusions, and underpinning the comparative aspects of the study, this book draws upon not only legal, but also anthropological analysis of social values, religious attitudes, and law regarding same-sex unions and disputes.

The book is intended as contribution to the study of comparative legal studies and access to justice and by considering legal and social developments in the Italian legal culture it also fills a gap in the literature by offering a detailed analysis of legal and social developments of issues and debates related to the rights of same-sex couples in Italy.

FURTHER WEIRD CASES
Comic and Bizarre Cases from Courtrooms around the World

Matthew Richardson

Price: £11.95
ISBN: 9780854901340
Extent: 178 pp
Binding: Hardback

This book, the third in a series, provides another instalment of extraordinary cases from around the world. Based on the author's popular Times Online column, Further Weird Cases draws on cases and stories from many countries, including the UK, USA, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Germany, Mexico, Italy, Japan, Romania, and China and contains a great variety of shockingly strange and entertaining courtroom dramas.

The cases featured in Further Weird Cases are those that truly stand out as odd, even among all the unusual dramas that challenge the courts: a man from Florida who had his hand bitten off by an alligator who was then convicted of "illegally feeding an alligator"; a man imprisoned for 50 years for sealing a packet of pork ribs; two men in Italy who broke the law by dying in a place where it was illegal to die; the case in Scotland that collapsed when a dog due to give evidence died before the trial; a case in Brazil in which an election candidate had tried to gain votes by including a free sample of cocaine with each election leaflet; a case determining whether it is theft for a shopper to go to the 'free sample' counter of meat in a supermarket, fill two bags with the samples, and exit; and what happened to the defendant who urinated in the judge's waste paper bin. These further weird cases are organised in themed chapters related to topics such as, sex and love, food and drink, unusual punishments, pets and animals, and driving.

This book is a highly entertaining read for anyone who enjoys reading about the more bizarre aspects of human life that fetch up in the law courts at the beginning of the 21st century.

CYBER CRIME Law and Practice

Foreword by Adrian Leppard, Commissioner, City of London Police

As computer technology has advanced – and along with it the development of the internet – the utility and benefits that they have brought with them have made them indispensable to modern society. With the ever increasing reliance on such technology and its pervasiveness in personal and professional life, it was inevitable that it should come to be used in ways which society has decided are contrary to the public interest and therefore worthy of disapprobation and criminal sanction. To this end, Parliament has found itself having to legislate in order to criminalise certain acts involving computer technology which did not exist prior to the development of the technology. On the other side of the law, the courts have found themselves having to redefine the application of pre-existing criminal law in order to accommodate and incorporate the novel ways in which computer technology can be used to commit criminal offences.

This book is the first book to tackle the fast growing topic of cyber crime and covers a wide range of topics from electronic fraud, cyber stalking, online theft and intellectual property to more involved topics like malicious communications and the rules of evidence relating to cyber crimes and computers.

Through the use of detailed case studies, examples and statutory extracts the reader is able to understand all aspects of cyber crime and computer crime. Cyber Crime: Law and Practice provides a practical, easy-to-follow guide for practitioners in the field, as well as those in law enforcement and academia.

Matthew Richardson is a specialist in electronic and hi-tech law, serving the first ever injunction via twitter, and obtaining several ground-breaking hi-tech orders since then. He is an Alderman of the City of London, Justice of Peace in Central London and a barrister at Henderson Chambers.
